Tells Romantic Tale and Pleads Mr. Whittet Would Establish Guilty to Signing Bogus Checks.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) TORONTO, CANADA, July 12 .- "I am a half brother of the Czar of Russia" is the astounding statement made by Alexander Seaman, a man about thirty years of age, now doing a term of eight months' imprisonment in the Central Prison here. He pleaded gullty before Magistrate Denison to the charge of having signed cheeks upon banks with whom he had no out the door richer by the dinner and the amount of the check, minus the price of the dinner.

Resembles Alexander III.

Resembles Alexander III.

He is a tall man, well built, with light hair and sandy moustache, the is well educated and can speak eight languages. In some respects he resembles Alexander III., father of the present Czar. It is true that light hair does not constitute anything Russian, but Charles Medland, who says he knew Seaman's mother, states she had light hair.

Mr. Medland also knew the story of her relationship to the late Czar and her subsequent retirement from the Russian Court, While on her estate in Berkshire, England, she is in the receipt of an income of $10,000, and she educated her son is the best schools and colleges. He derived his name from Robert Seaman, an English contractor, who had large interests in Russia and with whom a marriage of convenience was arranged.

Seaman has held various positions, from a Heusenant in the British army to a post in the Russian consulate. While in Paris about six years ago he held an unofficial position in the diplomatic corps. But his indiscretions in diplomatic affairs caused his dismissal, and he was told by the Russan government there was nothing more for him.

It is pointed out by experts in the Bertillon system that both the Czar and morth and the man transport of the contractor, who had large interesting the city attorney to proceed to defend the injunction proceedings in the Russian consulate. While in Paris about six years ago he held an unofficial position in the diplomatic affairs caused his dismissal, and he was told by the Russian government there was nothing more for him.

It is pointed out by experts in the Bertillon system that both the Car and Seaman have full eyes coming nearly level with the other points of the features. Detective Duncan said of this: "There is not one person in a thousand that has that kind of eye. Most of them was subset.

Known in Philadelphia.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 12.—Seaman was well known in this city for several years past as a resident at Green's Hotel and in some fashionable boarding houses, where he enjoyed the reputation of heing a broker, with offices in the Drexet building. He usually spent only his winters here, which he had done for three seasons. About seven weeks ago he left here for the summer, expecting to return again in the fall.

While the story of his alleged aristocratic relationship was not generally known, he had told it confidentially to a number of friends. He claimed to be a son of Alexander III., father of the present Czar, and that his mother was an English maid in waiting upon the Czarina. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.

INSTITUTE HAD MARKED PROGRESS

The Virginia Mechanics' Institute held his (wenty-first annual meeting last night, with a good attendance. Reports of the president treasurer, secretary, school and finance committees showed the institute to be in a very prosperous condition, and the progress made by the guidents during the last session netable.

Officers and directors elected for the cusuing year are:

Officers—W. J. Whitehurst, president; Mann S. Quarles, vice-president; William Je, Simons, treasurer; Thomas Ellett, secretary.

Mann S. Quartes, vice-president: William E. Simons, treasurer, Thomas Ellett, serietary.

Board of directors—E. R. Archer, Joseph B. Volet, James D. Crum, J. T. Christian, Jon Chamblin, A. Bargamio, Degar H. Jorgensson, Thomas C. Williams, J. Montago, Henry E. Hisims, J. Montago, Henry E. Hisims, J. Besher, Marx Gunst, H. M. Statke, J. T. Jobson, Thomas F. Jeffress, S. P. Valentine, Henry S. Hutzler, John W. Mothert, John T. Wilson, E. H. Jenkins, B. Rand, Wellford.

The new members are Messrs, Wilson and Jenkins.

The library of the institute is becoming an object of great pride to all interested in this sphendid school and the report of the librarian last night was head with great interest. The librarian stated that since July 1, 1933, 161 volumes had been added, the market value of which was 153, but the actual cost to the institute was only Mrs. Towards, the paybend of this sum Mr. Robert Lee Traylor gave $10.

The librarian calls atlention to the gift of the Misses Crenshaw of nine Parianbusts, respectively, of Addison, Burns, Byron, Dickens, Juyden, Ben Jonson, Milton Scott and Shakespeare. The librarian closes his informing report with squements showing the great popularity of the library with the teachers and students of the institute.

Man in Toronto Jail Says He Is Reduction Ordinance Practically Killed in the Board of Aldermen.

RESEMBLES ALEXANDER III. FOR A NEW LIGHT PLANT

last night resulted in the practical killing of President urfin's ordinance reducing the price of gas to consumers to ninety cents per 1,000 feet after February 1, 1904 as it was referred to the Finance Committee, and cannot come back in time for action by the present Council.

Next to this, one of the most important things done was the introduction by Mr. Whittet of an ordinance to establish a $300,000 light and power plant at the Old ump House. The session disposed of many routine matters.

The Mausieur ordinance eliminating city officials from the election machinery was adopted. When Mr. Turpin's ordinance reducing When Mr. Turpin's ordinance requests the price of sas to consumers to ninety cents per 1,000 cubic feet after February 1, 1904, came up, the patron offered some perfecting amendments, and appealed briefly, but earnestly, for its passage. A Sharp Fight.

In urging its adoption the president de-clarest-warmly that the people were being gouged outrageously by the electric light plants, and he was followed by Mr. Satterfield, who said the people were about to be boldly held up by those fur-nishing the electric lights. He favored the ordinance, Mr. Rennolds declared that he could not vote for the ordinance. The trouble, he thought, was that the that he could not vote for the ordinance. The trouble, he thought, was that the gas was so "infernally mean." The people would prefer better gas to cheaper gas. Mr. Turpin replied and said this was the first time any move had been made to save money to the people. Mesers. Allen and Rennolds asked Mr. Turpin a number of questions, and there was cutte. It it is made to save in the country of the country in the country of the Turpin a number of questions, and there was quite a little running debate between the three. Major Allen followed, and earnestly opposed the ordinance because he contended that the city could not afford it at this time,

Mr. Ginnt writed to according to us to make the language clearer, and Mr. Minor moved to refer. Messrs. Turpin and Zimmermann opposed this motion, and declared that it meant the death of the ordinance. The motion to table was adopted—ayes, 107 hees, 7.

Make the Changes.

Important companion ordinances, which were referred. One was to establish a municipal electric light and power plant at the old pump house, and the other was to issue $300,000 of thirty-four-year bonds for its establishment.

Elks' Grand Lodge.

Messrs. Frank Anthony and T. R. A. Burke, the committee from Richmond Ladge, urge all who expect to altendine Grand Lodge meeting to send in their names at once, so as to get accommodations reserved for thom on the special train next Sunday afternoon. A large delegation is already assured.
